

Our bargaining team is making progress!

Our SEIU Healthcare 1199NW bargaining team is at a critical point fighting hard to make sure our benefits and wages are protected. After four sessions we have made some good progress and got management to move in some important areas for our transition, but our work is not done.

"We have been at the table for a total of four days and anticipate further negotiations. We are doing our very best to secure the best deal during a very turbulent time due to Covid-19 and the devastating financial impact to University of Washington.

We are making progress but cannot do it alone. We want to thank all of those who signed the recent petition and urge those of you that have not to understand it in fact does make a difference."

"As we continue this journey, we are pleased to update all of our members on a job well done thus far! We have made some successful movements on both ends, we feel confident that we should be reaching an agreement very soon! We will continue to fight as long as it takes to make sure we are all taken care of appropriately! Thank all of you that have signed the petition. If you haven't signed yet, it's not too late—please sign as your vote counts. There is strength in numbers!"

JADA JEFFERSON, Medical Assistant, Federal Way Clinic

"We have made significant moves with management and are pleasantly surprised on the progress. The battle is not over and there is still more we need to achieve. We are hoping to see more movement from management to show us we are valued.

We appreciate those who have taken the time to sign the petition. It's critical for all of us to be committed getting those signatures."
