

Unanimous YES! We are united for our bargaining proposals

By a supermajority vote, we came out to show our support for our Bargaining Team/Contract Action Team team and our priorities for a new contract.

Members from all hospital units and job classes expressed that this is the path we want to take to get our first contract at VMFH Rehabilitation Hospital.

United we bargain, Divided we beg!"
-William Burns, BT, LPN

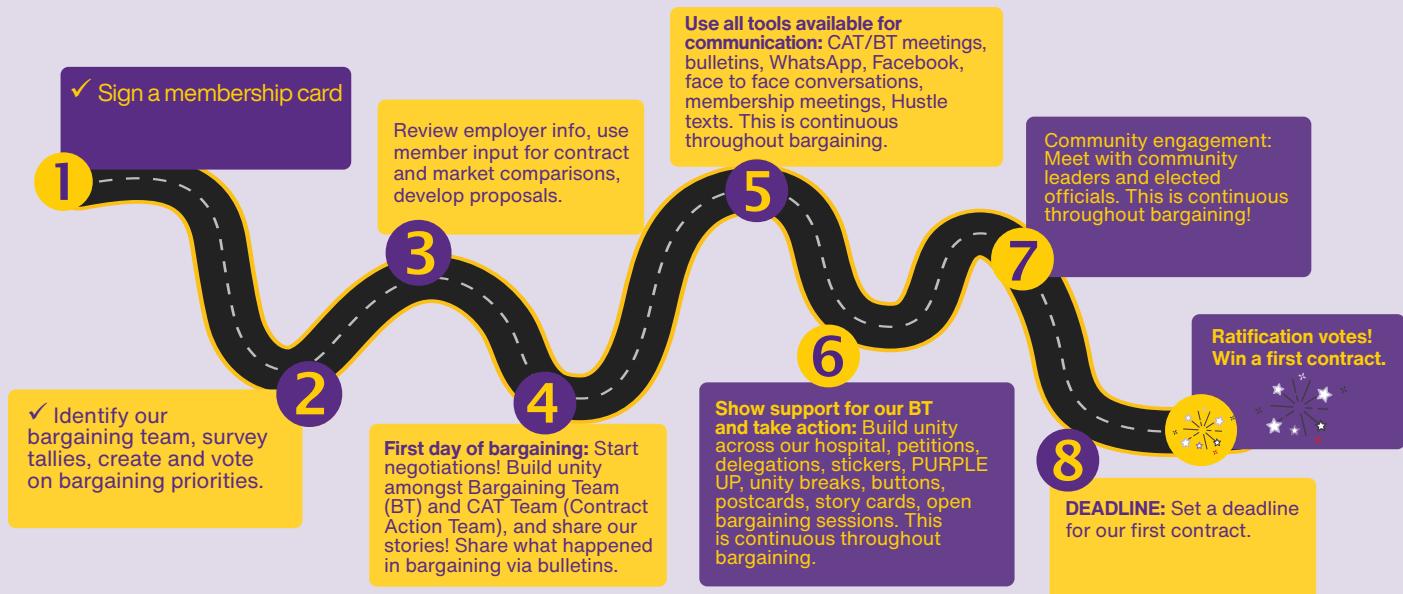

We believe that everyone who works at this hospital should thrive, both at work and at home, regardless of job class, race, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, or gender identity.

- ✓ We believe that every patient deserves the best care we can give them.
- ✓ We believe everyone deserves a living wage.
- ✓ We believe healthcare should be affordable and convenient.
- ✓ We believe in transparency.
- ✓ We believe that the voices of healthcare workers are vital to ensuring a functioning hospital and high-quality care.

"Leadership is about being of service to others, not being served by others." -Annie Reilly, BT, LPN

Standing together for strong contracts

Over 1,000 healthcare workers in the service, professional, and technical units at Virginia Mason Medical Center in Seattle are currently negotiating their first contract. They are advocating for improved wages, better staffing, benefits, and respect in the workplace.

Since October, over 600 Service and LPN members at St. Joseph Medical Center in Tacoma have been fighting for livable wages, better staffing, and workplace safety.

Additionally, over 80 healthcare workers in service and technical units at VMFH Rehabilitation Hospital in Tacoma have recently passed proposal priority votes to fight for improved wages, better staffing, benefits, and transparency in the workplace as they work towards securing a first contract. (That's us!)

Over 300 healthcare workers in service and technical units at VMFH St. Clare Hospital in Lakewood just unanimously passed proposal priority votes to fight for improved wages, better staffing, benefits, and respect in the workplace.
